

"TONKIE" WINS SUIT; JUSTICE DROPS CASE

Jurors Fail to Agree Upon the Worth of the Love of Fair
"College Widow."

John Ernest Wadleigh, a cigar store manager, has lost his suit for $50,000 against Loring Tonkin, a former Cornell student whom he accused of alienating the affections of the one-time Mrs. Wadleigh, a "college widow" at Cornell, who has been known in the chorus as Vera Black and who is now the wife of Leo Lamont, of Cincinnati, known as "Kid Lamont," a prize fighter. The jury which heard the case before Supreme Court Justice Amend disagreed and Justice Amend announced to-day that he would have nothing more to do with the case. If a new suit were started he said it would have to be before some other judge.

ROOSTERS ARE BEYOND LAW.

Magistrate Refused Order Restraining Birds From Early Crowing.

Samed Pelletier of No. 134 West Fifty-second street, was arranged before Magistrate Murphy in the West Side court by Inspector Unger of the Health Department to-day. John Frankenthaler, a lawyer of No. 138 West Fifty-first street, asserted that the crowing of two of Pelletier's roosters was bringing himself and Mrs. Frankenthaler to the verge of nervous prostration. Pelletier showed a health department permit to keep "seven chickens." The inspector and the lawyer contended that the roosters were outside of the chicken class. Magistrate Murphy pos-tered long and dismissed the case, saying: "Until the court is advised of a method by which roosters may be restrained from crowing, the court is unable to aid the complainant. The court has no doubt as to the right of a man with a permit to keep chickens, to include roosters among the chickens. Roosters have crowed from the day of creation. There is no way to stop them. It can't be done."

Kiely's Death an Accident.
It was reported to the Coroner's office after a police investigation to-day that the death of John J. Kiely, chauffeur for Secretary of State Mitchell May, at his home, No. 222 State street, Wednesday, was not suicide. Kiely, who was ill, had arranged a screen over the gas bracket to shade his eyes. Apparently in reaching around the screen to turn off the gas he put out the light and turned on a second jet connected with a gas stove, which was open.

1,500 Women's Coats

made of "Salt's" Sealette & "Saltex" fur fabrics at one-half the customary prices

This sale is without parallel in the history of this or any other store, because never before has any store been privileged to offer garments made of the celebrated "Salt's" fabrics at such a fabulous advantage on regular prices.

And as we ourselves selected the models for this tremendous event, you may be certain of finding a very representative collection of the smartest coat ideas in vogue.

"Salt's" only rival is the Animal Kingdom!

"Salt's" is more than a name—it is an institution whose foundation is quality and whose creative genius has produced fabrics that have all the beauty, the density of pile and the rich lustre of fine furs.

Every garment in this sale is made of genuine "Saltex" fur fabric or "Sealette," and every piece, at intervals of a yard and a quarter, is stamped with one of "Salt's" registered trade marks as illustrated below.
